

SEC Cancels Prom For '58

McGill Greet Visiting Varsity

Redmen Face Old Rivals Tomorrow

The McGill Redmen will be trying to break an eight-year jinx when they take to the Molson gridiron tomorrow afternoon to play the University of Toronto Varsity Blues. It has been eight years since the Redmen have won the first two games of their Intercollegiate League schedule.

The Redmen are hoping to snap out of this jinx for several reasons. For one thing, their opponents come from Toronto, and this is reason enough to want to beat them. Also, first place is at stake. Both teams won their opening games, and the winner will take over sole possession of top spot. And last but not least, the Redmen do not want this to become a tradition for McGill football teams.

In order to stop the Blues on Saturday, they will have to stop the running of quarterback Brian Aston and halfback Tim Reid. Aston used the option play to good advantage last week against Western, and Coach Bruce Coulter has had his boys practicing a defence for this.

SPEEDY HALFBACK

The other man whom the Redmen will have to watch is Tim Reid. Tim is a veteran of three seasons with the Blues. In last week's game he not only scored two touchdowns, but was also their leading groundgainer.

Toronto's passing attack was strengthened this year by the return of all-star end Gene Chorostecki. Gene sat out last season due to an injury, but reports coming from Toronto indicate that he is in tip-top shape and should have a great year.

Council Move Forced By Financial Losses

SCOPE Budget Increased, AUQ Project Approved

by Peter Kilburn

There will be no McGill Prom during the current school year. By unanimous decision, the Students' Executive Council last night adopted a resolution which strikes the prom from this year's list of social events. Debate over the question was lengthy but council members were in complete agreement by the time the affair was put to motion.

Several other issues came up for consideration by the SEC which was still in session at press time.

The appointment of a McGill Prom Chairman was under study when the question of the justification of the hitherto annual event was brought to the council's attention. From this point, the discussion centred wholly on the issue of the dance's desirability.

SEC and being something which theoretically could appeal to the whole campus, it undoubtedly had some value.

Discussion eventually shifted to a consideration of the possibility that an optional — dress — dance be held jointly by the SEC and some other campus group. The suggestion was eventually rejected.

This year's edition of the Prom had been planned for November 28.

An important part of the agenda was concerned with the choice of a Chairman for the McGill branch of the World University Service (WUS). Four candidates were mentioned. R. Jamie Plant was selected for the job.

PAST POSITIONS

Plant, a second year law student who formerly attended Bishop's University, has held a number of responsible positions which recommended him for the chairmanship. At Bishop's he served as Accountant to the SEC in 1955-56, Secretary-Treasurer of the same organization the following year, and business manager of the university's year book.

The Quebec Universities Association is planning to hold an extensive survey on student social and economic conditions in this province. All six Quebec universities have been sent sample questionnaire forms which, in the event of the principle being approved by the student bodies in these institu-

Rehak Named New Daily Managing Editor

Peter S. Rehak, B.A. 4, was appointed Managing Editor of the McGill Daily at the Students' Executive Council meeting last night.

Rehak, who served as Associate News Editor last year, replaces Eric Rennert, B.Sc. 4, whose resignation for personal reasons was accepted by the Council.

Peter Rehak

Rehak now becomes a member of the Managing Board of the DAILY which consists of the Editor-in-Chief, the Managing Editor, and an Executive Editor. His appointment is effective immediately.

DAILY VETERAN

A member of the staff since his arrival at McGill four years ago, Rehak served as Photography Editor for two years before moving to the News Department.

Rennert, who was formerly Sports Editor, submitted his resignation to the Editor-in-Chief Gordon Wasserman last week. Rennert stated that this step was necessary for "health and personal reasons".

Power Failure Strikes Union At Noon Hour

Hungry students were deprived of their hamburgers yesterday when a power failure blacked out the Union.

From 1:08 to 1:20 pm, the building was without lights and the Grill Room cooking facilities were paralyzed. The Union telephone switchboard was dead for the entire period.

For a few minutes service continued as usual in the Grill Room but the menu soon shrank to cold sandwiches.

The Cafeteria failed to feel the effects of the failure as both its grill and stoves are operated by gas.

A Hydro Commission spokesman said that neither the source nor the cause was known as the tests failed to reveal any damages.

The blackout was no surprise to George, the Tuck Shop custodian, who has seen the same thing often in previous years.

This Morning's Headlines

News of National and World Significance

NICOSIA, Oct. 2 — (Reuters) — A British civilian was shot to death and two British soldiers critically injured today in a bomb explosion on the second day of Britain's new partnership plan for Cyprus.

PARIS, Oct. 2 — (HTNS) — Premier Charles De Gaulle's government has decided to reestablish civilian control in Algeria, now ruled by the French army, it was reported in informed circles today.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 — (CP) — General Motors car assembly lines came to a stop today as the United Auto Workers called 250,000 GM workers out on strike in their long-standing contract dispute.

No More Prom

The Students' Executive Council last night voted not to hold the Prom this year. After a stormy debate that lasted approximately one hour and a half, the Council felt that the holding of the heretofore annual affair would not be in the best interests of the Students' Society.

There were many factors which influenced the members in their decisions. But regardless on which side of the issue they stood, each member took his duties seriously and acted with a sense of responsibility and concern for the welfare of the campus.

The issue of the Prom is not new. It has been debated by numerous Councils in the past but never before has any positive action been taken. The Prom went on from year to year, a tradition that seemed to be too strong to break.

For the past several years, however, the dance was losing money with meticulous regularity. Each year, the date was shifted in an effort to save the sinking ship, but all attempts were to no avail. Formal dances just weren't what they used to be (unless of course the entire engineering faculty backed them).

As the years went on, the attendance fell off until it reached a point where the dance was being subsidized to be extent of five dollars per couple from the Students' Society money. The time for action had arrived.

Tonight the Council acted and acted wisely. But the most convincing argument was not the aspect of losing money. It was, as one member pointed out, the fact that the campus was growing and there were simply too many activities at McGill. The existing groups and events have grown to such proportions over the last few years that there simply wasn't enough money for all of them. The dates calendar for the current year is so tightly packed that the student who wanted to attend all of the activities being offered would be unable to do so from the point of view of time alone.

The campus is indeed growing. The entire university is expanding at an amazing rate. We hear about how this increased enrollment poses huge problems for the administration. But it presents equally challenging issues to the student leaders.

The Council made a wise decision last night. We hope that they will meet the problems of the future with equal success.

Knowledge at College

"It's not for knowledge that we go to college..." run the words of the well-known song. The line illustrates an attitude which has become a thing of the past, namely the Rah-Rah days of college.

Of all events in recent years, Russia's Sputnik has best served to show the overwhelming respect and social acceptance that education commands today. The entire education system has become the object of more attention than it has at perhaps any other time in the history of our civilization.

The quest for knowledge has caused enrollment in our colleges and universities to increase, and from all indications the trend will continue.

The student himself has not been blind to these changes, and has adapted himself to the situation with a marked change in attitude. The "professional student" who failed each year three times, and then changed faculties and started all over, never completing the requirements for a degree, can no longer survive.

It is simply too expensive to flunk every year, or even every second year. Besides, university regulations are becoming stricter each semester, supplemental examinations are harder and harder to come by, and it may not be long before the competition for a place in the university may eliminate them altogether.

Today's "professional student" is a different type from his counterpart a generation ago. He collects degrees, fellowships, scholarships, and grants in any form, size, or shape. He usually ends his university career with a solid accomplishment; and although he still enjoys life, he is a far cry from the irresponsible devil-may-care fellow of two decades ago.

We think it is a change for the better.

Daily Letters

Dr. Wright Disagrees

To the Editor:

Will you permit me to register extensive disagreement with Mr. Donolo's article on educational finance.

I submit that Mr. Donolo has scrambled two quite different questions. They are (1) should Quebec devote more money to higher education (2) should McGill accept government particularly Ottawa grants?

That there is a need for a broader base of public higher education in Quebec seems to me fairly clear. But that McGill should fill the gap, especially if it means losing its independence and private status, does not seem to me so clear.

I do not think the course advocated by Mr. Donolo is either necessary or desirable. It is not only undesirable for McGill but also it is undesirable for public education in Quebec.

First as to necessity. The tuition fee at McGill is absurdly low compared with that of comparable American and other universities. Allowing for the difference in Canadian income, I would still be inclined to think a 25% increase in the present tuition fees would have a favorable effect on McGill revenue and practically no effect on McGill enrollment. People think this is a pretty good university and are willing to pay to attend it.

So far as the interests of public education are concerned, I taught for years in an American state university. The value to us of Harvard and other great private colleges was inestimable. They furnished a standard by which we might needle the public authorities. The best service McGill could possibly perform would be to remain a relatively small, very good university and thus to be a target toward which the public colleges could move, a standard of comparison.

The case against the Ottawa grants is the same as the case against centralized control everywhere. However high-minded in intention they are inevitably the means over the years, of imposing a substantial ideological uniformity. A Pharisee is frequently a far more dangerous person than a crook. For a Pharisee usually doesn't know he is a Pharisee. From multiple independent centers of thought and research spring mutual independent criticism.

Gowns at McGill?

To the Editor:

"Undergraduates are entitled to wear a plain stuff gown, not longer than half way between knee and ankle, with round sleeves cut above elbow."

—p. 4707, McGill University Calendar.

There is a small but enthusiastic group of students in Wilson Hall which considers that the wearing of an undergraduate gown is a privilege of which advantage should be taken. Gowns are not a symbol of affectation or conceit; rather they are a symbol of student fellowship and intention.

Representatives of this group have already contacted the University Robemaker to discuss the possibility of a reduction in the price. We have been assured that, should sufficient students be interested, a reduction of about 35% off the normal price will be arranged, bringing it down to about $12. The same gown worn in a slightly different manner will serve as a bachelor's gown for graduation.

We do ask that you give serious consideration to this venture.

ture, and that those people interested contact the undersigned at Wilson Hall (VI. 4-0624), where a sample may be seen.

Richard Neutra Speaks Tonight

RICHARD NEUTRA

Richard Neutra has become known as one of the first architects to design individual low cost homes. Uniquely created for their owners, all of his houses are comprehensively planned down to the last partition. This meticulous regard for detail has proved successful in the many community planning specifications he has drawn up on both sides of the Atlantic. Hospitals and schools are a third field in which he has excelled.

He has lectured all over the world — the United States, Mexico, Canada, South America and Japan. A fellow of the American Institute of Architects and holder of honorary Fellowships in the Royal Institute of British Architects and the Associations of Mexican, Cuban and Bolivian Architects, Neutra has received prizes, medals and awards for his many achievements.

Date Set For 3 Elections

Three by-elections will be held on October 16 to choose a new Chairman of the Students' Athletics Council and S.E.C. representatives from Commerce and Engineering. Nominations close on Monday, at 4 pm.

The S.A.C. post was vacated by Peter Baird, elected last March, who is not returning to McGill this year. Georges Desjardins resigned as one of the two representatives from Engineering to take the presidency of the E.U.S. Nick Asimakopulos resigned as Commerce representative to become Union President.

Elections will be conducted under a new system this year. The Student Identification Card will be stamped as its bearer votes. Previously, lists of names were employed.

Intramural Sports Beat

by Bobby Rosenfeld

This will be a weekly column summarizing the intramural sports programme. Its purpose is to give recognition to those who have participated in intramural sports and to promote interest in the competition as a whole. The sports calendar includes tennis, golf, harrier, volleyball, touch football, track & field, and judo in the fall season, while table tennis, badminton, basketball, floor hockey, gymnastics, handball, riflery, squash, ice hockey, fencing, and curling.

Points are given to the faculties of the individual or team winners, and for participation in all intramural sports. The intramural championship is not won on overall point total, but on an increased point percentage basis over the faculties previous year's showing. The faculty of Law were victorious last year.

TOUCH FOOTBALL

Thirty-two teams will represent eight faculties in this year's touch football competition. Arts & Science and Engineering will have ten teams going for them while the Faculty of Medicine has four, Commerce, — three, Law — 2, an Architecture, Dentistry, and the Graduate faculty will field one apiece. Students must play for their own faculty in all intramural leagues.

All postponed games due to bad weather will be played on Friday at the Upper Field and on the lower campus. All faculty sports representatives are asked to check out uniforms at the gym as no team will be permitted to play league games without uniforms. Default, if not in uniform, is subject to a fine of $3.00.

Some of the more important rules and regulations are as follows: A game will be divided into four ten minute periods with a ten minute rest at half time. At least three members of the offensive team must be on the line of scrimmage. Each team has the ball for three consecutive downs in which to make ten yards. A player must be touched simultaneously with both hands by an opponent to be stopped. All players are eligible to receive passes. A forward pass may only be thrown from behind the line of scrimmage, while lateral passes are permitted anywhere. Blocking is legal up to five yards ahead of the line of scrimmage and no blocking is permitted after a kick. You cannot pick up an opponent's fumble and run with it; you can kick it or fall on it. If your team fumbles you may pick it up and advance or fall on it or kick it. Substitution is unlimited. Touch-downs count for five points while other scoring is similar to Canadian Football rules. Only fifteen seconds are permitted for the huddle, anything over this results in loss of a down. Any rule not covered above will be governed by C.R.U. rules.

TENNIS

The results of the second match in the tennis tournament as of yesterday are as follows: N. Straker defeated Beinhaker 6-2, 8-6; D. Fraser won over T. Fattal 6-3, 6-2; L. Blondin downed Cuthbert 5-3, default second set; G. Mohan crushed R. Kupitsky 6-1, 6-2.

Soccermen Lose Opener

Sir George Williams College scoring two goals in the last five minutes of play, defeated McGill 3-1 in a soccer game played at the Upper Field Wednesday night.

Sir George took an early 1-0 lead capitalizing on some sloppy play by the McGill defence. However the McGill team fought back valiantly and soon knotted the count on a nifty play by left outside, Guy Steed. Steed trapped the ball deep in Georgian territory and with deft deception, pirouetted around two defenders to angle a high shot behind Georgian Goalie, Roy Christopher. From this point until the last five minutes, both teams battled viciously trying to break the deadlock. Finally, Awai, taking a short pass from twenty feet in front of the McGill nets, blasted a low shot into the corner of the net, cleanly beating McGill goaler, Klaus. Before McGill had a chance to recuperate from the second Georgian goal, Dave Matheson added an insurance marker, on a tip in from the front of the goal crease.

The contest itself was a fast, rugged and spirited one producing sharp passing and excellent team play. No team dominated the play but Lady Luck rescued the Georgians on several occasions. Twice the ball hit the inside of the Georgian goal post and on several instances goals were missed on a yawning net.

Reds Battle Blues

Varsity coach Dalt White claims that he has one of the strongest benches in the league this year, and since eighteen of his players are returnees from last year, one gets the idea that he isn't exactly talking through his hat.

Latest word from the gym indicates that Al Braekvelt, an offensive guard and defensive linebacker, will see only limited action tomorrow. Al injured his groin in last week's game against Queen's. On offense he will be replaced by Chuck Arnold, while Ed Smith will probably take his place defensively.

Otherwise the Redmen will field the same squad that defeated the Gaels last Saturday.

JUDO CLUB

Registration will be held on October 6, 5:30 p.m. BWF for everyone interested. No judo-gies are required. Senior members will meet at 6 p.m. October 8 at BWF room in the gym.

McGILL C.O.T.C.

The first parade of the McGill COTC will be held on Tuesday, October 7 at 7:30 p.m.

All students interested in the COTC Reserve Officer Training are asked to visit the COTC office on the third floor in the gymnasium for the information about the winter and summer programme.

The COTC office will be open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. and on parade evenings.
